

Wikipedia #1lib1ref

January 15 through February 3, 2017

*Imagine a World where Every Librarian
Added One More Reference to Wikipedia*

The Wikipedia Library is hosting the #1Lib1Ref campaign. The object is to get every librarian to add one reference or citation to a Wikipedia article.

Wikipedia's strength is in the references that support it. Wikipedia is an ever changing source of information. Learning how to critically evaluate Wikipedia is a key skill. Librarians are in a perfect position to help improve Wikipedia and make it a better resource for everyone.

Local libraries are encouraged to create Wikipedia-themed programming around this event. Have an edit-a-thon, host a citation coffee hour, have a citation challenge in your library. This handout is to give you some ideas about how to get involved.

Links to get started

Project web page including information on how to add citations

<http://1lib1ref.org>

Citation Hunt Tool to find facts which are missing citations

<https://tools.wmflabs.org/citationhunt>

GLAM Project (Galleries, Libraries, Archives, Museums)

<https://outreach.wikimedia.org/wiki/GLAM>

Wikipedia Library

https://meta.wikimedia.org/wiki/The_Wikipedia_Library

#1lib1ref event on Facebook

<http://facebook.com/events/1777962835753887>

Vermont Contacts

Alex Stinson from Wikimedia: astinson@wikimedia.org

Jake Orlowitz from Wikimedia: jorlowitz@gmail.com

Jessamyn West from Randolph: jessamyn@gmail.com