2010 American Library Association Conference

“Wow! I can’t believe we’re here.” That’s what I kept thinking as Shelia and I were at the annual American Library Association Conference. What an amazing experience. As both of us were first-time conference attendees, the whole weekend was a little overwhelming for us, but I’d like to share a little bit about what the conference is about.

First, there are the workshops. Hundreds and hundreds of workshops that cover a wide array of subjects. Using graphic novels in your library, learning about the newest technology trends, and talking about library statistics are just a small sampling of some of the great programs you could attend.

Next, there are the exhibits. Enough exhibits to make your head whirl. Publishing houses large and small were there, promoting their books, along with library automation vendors, database experts and library furniture salesmen. If there is something that belongs in libraries, it was there on the exhibit floor. We learned about all kinds of new items and services available to libraries.

And then there are the authors. Lots and lots of authors. For someone who is easily star-struck, I was in seventh heaven surrounded by the likes of Mo Willems, Rosemary Wells, Junot Diaz, John Grisham and Denis Lehane. But by far, my favorite moment of the whole conference was meeting the legendary, Nobel laureate and Pulitzer-Prize winning author Toni Morrison.

I’ll be doing an NCompass Live session on August 4th about the “Best of ALA 2010” so if you’d like to know more, please join us. I encourage everyone to try and get to an ALA annual conference sometime—it’s worth it!

Did you know you could borrow seeds?

Little Priest Tribal College in Winnebago loans out seeds to patrons. At the end of the season, the patrons are asked to bring back a portion of seeds from that year’s harvest to share with the community for the next planting year.

Little Priest Tribal College is not the only library that loans out non-traditional materials. Several libraries loan out cake pans, puzzles and even games. Norfolk Public Library loans out travel packs for people going on vacation and they just started loaning out video games. The South Sioux City Public Library loans out umbrellas!

If you have an exciting event you would like to share with other Northeast Nebraska libraries, contact the Northeast Library System office and ask to have your item included in the “Northeast News” section of the newsletter.

Northeast Library System has a NEW website! Check it out at http://libraries.ne.gov/nels

You can find a calendar of events with links to registration forms, lists of materials in our lending library and find out about all the services that NELS offers.

Our new website was made possible by the Nebraska Libraries on the Web project by the Nebraska Library Commission. Other libraries in Northeast Nebraska that got new websites through this project are:

- Clarkson Public Library
- Meadow Grove Public Library
- Pilger Public Library

Battle Creek Public Library has moved into their new building! The Battle Creek Methodist church was remodeled to give Battle Creek a freshly remodeled and modern library.

Kids and Teens

We all know that kids love the computer. Even little children are using the internet, visiting sites designed just for preschoolers, like PBS Kids and Nick Jr. If your library is seeing your computer users get younger and younger, consider dedicating a computer or two just for the little ones. You can take an older computer and load some educational games on it, or you can consider a specialized computer made just for little ones.

The Early Literacy Station by AWE comes with pre-loaded software for kids ages 2-10, a color-coded keyboard and withstands repeated use by small children. The computers cost $3500, but Nebraska libraries have been given a discount price of $2800. Although this is a steep price tag, these computers are qualifying purchases for those who are applying for a Nebraska Library Commission Youth for Excellence Grant.

If you’d like to see a demo of an Early Literacy Station by AWE, you can join us at Wayne Public Library on August 24 at 10:00 a.m. Please see the registration form in this newsletter.

WrestleMania Reading Challenge

The deadline to register is July 31!

The WrestleMania Reading Challenge is sponsored by YALSA and World Wrestling Entertainment. The program encourages teens and tweens to read during Teen Read Week and beyond. By doing so, they can win prizes donated by WWE and other organizations.

Librarians can register to participate with YALSA from April 15 through July 31, 2010. Registrants can request one or two WrestleMania Reading Challenge Resource Kits and will be entered to win one of five sets of books courtesy of Penguin.

For more info, or to register, check out www.ala.org/yalsa.

Fallen Angels

It seems that angels, and fallen angels in particular, are starting to infiltrate teen fantasy fiction like an army of newborn vampires. If you’re looking for some new fantasy fiction that doesn’t involve blood-sucking, try these titles:
- Hush, Hush by Becca Fitzpatrick
- Fallen by Lauren Kate
- Heavenly by Jennifer Laurens
Using Numbers to Tell Your Story

We librarians are not particularly known for our mathematical savvy. Yet most of us are called on at some point or another to analyze numbers. Some of us have budgets to consider, some are concerned with circulation figures, and for many of us that tends to make us feel more than a little uncomfortable. Yet numbers can be powerful allies. Numbers can help us justify to others why what we believe in is important. The headlines lately have been touting the importance of libraries in this tough economic time. Libraries are being used now more than ever before, but we wouldn’t know that—and more importantly couldn’t prove that—if we didn’t have the numbers to back it up. So here are a few tips to keep in mind when you are working with collecting statistics in your library.

- Keep it simple. Figure out what you want to know first and stick to collecting only that information. Let’s use the example of analyzing the circulation of a graphic novel collection.

- Think like your audience. When you’ve got the numbers that you want, put them in context for your audience. If your graphic novels have circulated 20 times this year, let your audience know if that’s good or bad. Remember that your City Council Member or Library Director may not have a frame of reference for this information. Make your information tell your story. Are you trying to prove that graphic novels are becoming more popular? Then compare your graphic novel circulation this year to last year’s number. Are you trying to prove that graphic novels are as important to your collection as other formats? Then compare your graphic novel circulation to another format, like audio books. Don’t forget to take your total circulation and divide it by the number of items in that collection to make sure you get a fair comparison.

  - If your graphic novels circulated 20 times, but you only have 4 of them, then that means they each circulated an average of 5 times. If your audio books circulated 100 times but you have 50 of them, then they each circulated an average of 2 times. So even if it looks like your audio books circulated more, your graphic novels had a higher circulation per item.

- Make it pretty. Visual diagrams always help people compare things, so when possible, include a chart. If you’re using Excel to work with your numbers, there is a handy chart button that will make the graphic for you. If you’re not sure how to do that, check out YouTube for some great Excel tutorials on how to make charts. If you’re not using Excel, you can use this handy chart maker from the National Center for Educational Statistics:

Bridging the Gender Gap:
Enticing Boys to Books

Presenter: Carole Fiore

September 14th or 15th, 2010

Carole D. Fiore holds a BS in Early Childhood and Elementary Education from Temple University and an MS in Library Science from Drexel University. Carole was a public library consultant with the State Library and Archives of Florida where she directed the award winning Florida Library Youth Program (FLYP). She also served as the Library Services and Technology Act Grant Coordinator and liaison consultant to libraries and library systems in rural, suburban, and urban areas.

Carole will teach you how to:
- Increase your knowledge and skill level in connecting boys and books.
- How to evaluate and purchase materials attractive to boys.
- Types of activities that will attract boys to libraries and reading
- Understand boy's developmental progression.

This program is sponsored in part by the Nebraska Library Commission and funded in part with state funds allocated through the Nebraska Legislature.

Board Meeting Minutes
May 19, 2010

The Library System Board met on Wednesday, May 19, 2010 at the Verdigre Public Library. Host was director Deb Hamilton. Kate Ostenrude, President, called the meeting to order. Members in attendance were Judy Hagan, Michele Hastreiter, Tami Anderson, Dee Johnson, Jolene Klein, Lynn Manhart, Chris Chilcoat, Kathy Ageton, Elaine Tobias, and Sally Stahlecker. Absent were Sharon Jones and Joyce Sullivan. Also present were Library System Director Jessica Chamberlain, Shelia Cermak, Administrative Assistant, and Richard Miller of the Nebraska Library Commission.

The minutes were approved. (Johnson 1M / Manhart 2M / all ayes) Correspondence was read. Shelia presented the Financial Report. It was moved and approved by roll call vote. (Ageton 1M / Hagan 2M / all aye).

Richard Miller reported for the Nebraska Library Commission. He announced that through the gift of an anonymous donor there is a new Student Internship Grant that will benefit 10 libraries with $1,000. Guidelines for the grant are currently under review, and comments can be emailed to Richard or to the NLC until Oct. 31. He also promoted use of the free webinars available through the NLC, and he stated that the 2010 Nebraska Book Awards will be given Nov. 6 in Lincoln.

Jessica Chamberlain gave the Director's report. The first Straighttalk newsletter was published in 10 months. There is a new Northeast Library System website at http://libraries.ne.gov/nels/ , which was established through a pilot project with the Nebraska Library Commission. All services, including the URL, are free. The Summer Reading Program workshop was successful and well received.

No committee reports were given.

In Unfinished Business, recommendations for updating the bylaws were discussed. It was moved and approved to change three bylaws to the following: (Stahlecker 1M / Chilcoat 2M / all aye)

ARTICLE V – BOARD OF DIRECTORS
Section 4: Election, Terms, and Replacement of Board Members. Regular terms of Board members shall begin at the conclusion of the Annual Meeting and expire at the conclusion of the Annual Meeting, three years hence. A Board member whose term has expired shall still hold office until a qualified successor has been elected or appointed.

Section 9: Officers. Any check for payment requires two of three signatures from the Treasurer, the Director, or designated current or past member residing in the Columbus area. In instances where there is only one person in the area, the check(s) will be signed by a registered signer, copied, and then presented to one of the other two signers, initialed and dated.

ARTICLE VII – NOMINATION COMMITTEE
The Nominating Committee shall consist of three people, one of whom shall be a current board member who serves as Chairperson and liaison to the board. The remaining two committee members may be outgoing board members or residents of the System area.

Also in Unfinished Business, Dee Johnson made recommendations for the budget committee for the use of the one-time overage fund available. This extra funding accrued during the past year with no director’s salary and no newsletter published. It was moved and approved to accept the recommendations for the expenditure of the overage funds. (Ageton 1M / Tobias 2M / all ayes)

In New Business, members were asked for comments and suggestions for a speaker for the annual meeting in September. The cell phone service for the director was discussed. It was moved and approved to cancel the current cell phone service and to investigate other options. (Chilcoat 1M / Johnson 2M / all aye)

Members shared local library news. A Pat on the Back Award will be presented to Dixie Kucera, retiring director of the Tilden Public Library, for her many years of excellent service.

A motion was made to pay the claims of the day. (Ageton 1M / Stahlecker 2M / all aye) The meeting was adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

Jolene Klein, Secretary
Did you know?
Melvil Dewey believed in something he called the “economy of spelling.” He thought unnecessary letters should be removed from words whenever possible, which is why he changed his first name from “Melville” to “Melvil.”

In 1876 Dewey helped begin the Spelling Reform Association of which he was Secretary for almost all his life. He also served on the Simplified Spelling Board. Dewey believed that there were two elements that obstructed elementary education. One being the American system of weights and measures and the other one being complicated spelling.

About the English language Dewey wrote:
"Speling Skolars agree that we hav the most unsyentifik, unskolarli, illojikal & wasteful speling ani languaj ever ataind."
